Market overview

The third quarter was characterised by mixed data around the world, with central banks coming towards the end of their rate hiking path, but with cuts still seemingly a while away. The global economic picture is rosier now than it was at the start of the year, but global growth is spluttering again amid a disappointing bounce in China activity, slow-to-no growth in Europe and against a backdrop of restrictive monetary policy. The US still looks at risk of recession too, even if activity data to date has been fairly robust.

Inflation has fallen significantly and, although higher energy prices threaten a widespread revival in headline inflation, other factors – including a weak economic activity backdrop – should pull inflation lower still. With taming inflation still the priority for central banks, there is still a possibility of further rate hikes from the Federal Reserve (Fed), European Central Bank (ECB) and Bank of England (BoE), but peak rates look to be near, with real rates now well into positive territory.

The outlook is still lacklustre in the UK. A technical recession is still assumed for the UK in the next 12 months, but a modest one. There are still risks from the housing sector and consumer spending has yet to respond fully to tighter monetary policy. GDP growth has been weak since late 2021 and PMI business surveys point to deterioration, falling into recessionary territory over the summer. Inflation should fall significantly at headline level, but domestically driven inflation continues to look strong, despite higher interest rates. The labour market is starting to look less tight and lead indicators of wage growth suggest some slowing ahead but so far, pay growth remains much too strong to be consistent with hitting a 2% inflation target.

In the US, the real economy has been surprisingly resilient in the face of tighter credit conditions. However, the fourth quarter looks set to see a few growth challenges, monetary policy is restrictive and employment growth has slowed. A number of recession indicators are still flashing. Business survey data paints a mixed picture, with PMIs consistent with flattish growth while ISM surveys look more upbeat. Employment gains have slowed on the non-farm payrolls data and job openings have fallen a long way from their highs consistent with a less tight labour market. Housing-related activity remain subdued.

The euro area economy may already be in mild recession and forecasts continue to pencil one in. Business surveys have deteriorated and look consistent with falling private sector output. Tighter monetary policy will still be feeding through to the real economy. Bank lending conditions have tightened and loan growth has slowed. High domestically driven inflation continues to point to the balance of risks being in the direction of further hikes.

Global government bond markets continued to see yields move higher – a trend that started in mid-2020, reflecting market views that rising inflation would necessitate higher interest rates and that the central banks and governments would ultimately have to withdraw the support measures put in place during the global financial crisis and then used further to help mitigate the economic impact of Covid. With the end of the rate rising cycle possibly in sight, but issuance expected to remain high, markets have become more volatile.

UK government bonds struggled, being impacted by the higher-than-expected inflation print. Gilts delivered a -0.63% return (FTSE Actuaries) over the third quarter with the benchmark 10-year gilt yield rising to 4.44% from 4.39% but pulled back from a 4.75% high seen in mid-August. There was a marked difference in maturities, with short-dated bonds materially outperforming longer-dated bonds, as expectations that rates may be at a peak helped short-dated bonds start to anticipate cuts in late 2024, while longer-dated bonds remained weak due to concerns about the long-term inflation environment and significant gilt supply. In the US, 10-year treasury yields rose to 4.57% from 3.84%, hitting heights not seen in fifteen years, while in Germany the 10-year bund yield increased to 2.84% from 2.39%.

UK index-linked markets significantly underperformed on a global basis, returning -4.69% (FTSE Actuaries) in the third quarter. Real yields on UK 10-year bonds saw a rise over the period, ending the quarter at 0.60%, up from 0.52%. On longer-term bonds, 30-year real yields increased 53bps to 1.48%. Yields on US 10-year index-linked bonds increased to 2.23% from 1.61%, while its German counterpart saw yields rise to 0.45% from 0.07%.

The sterling investment grade credit market (Non-gilt) returned 2.26% over the quarter, as the negative impact of higher government bond yields was offset by tighter credit spreads and the greater proportion of short-dated bonds (which performed well relatively to longer-dated equivalents) in credit indices. The average sterling investment grade credit spread (the average extra yield available from non-gilt bonds compared with government debt of equal maturity) tightened from 1.48% to 1.38% (iBoxx). Banks and insurance bonds performed strongly in the quarter while senior insurance debt also enjoyed an impressive quarter. No sector saw negative returns, but real estate was broadly flat, and healthcare and transportation lagged other sectors. By rating, there was no standout performer in investment grade, with all bands posting returns between 1.8% and 2.5%. High yield bonds, however, saw a strong quarter, seeing returns of 3.7%. In duration terms, shorter-dated maturities performed significantly better than longer-dated equivalents.

Primary credit activity picked up after a particularly slow July. Sterling issuance was £11.2bn over the quarter, which was slightly behind the £11.5bn seen over the same time last year and significantly below the £17.4bn issued in the second quarter.

Overview

Portfolio performance and activity

Please note, individual bonds may not appear in all sterling credit portfolios; however only those that are held more broadly across the range of funds are mentioned.

Our sterling credit portfolios saw positive returns in the period, generally broadly in line with the iBoxx Sterling Non-Gilt index benchmark. The main drag on performance during the quarter was our duration position although stock selection also detracted.

We had a small bias towards long duration and an underweight in short-dated (under five year) bonds. With yields ending the quarter slightly higher, and short-dated bonds outperforming long-dated, these biases impacted performance. Our investment process focuses on building portfolios from the bottom up, using a high level of diversification to reduce stock specific risk. This will create small biases in duration and curve positions that in any given quarter may have a positive or negative impact. We believe that long-term outperformance of our benchmark will primarily be driven by sector and security selection.

The main positive contributor in the quarter was our sector allocation – in particular our overweight in banks and significant underweight in supranationals. Within banks, our lower tier 2 and tier 1 bonds (lower in the capital structure than senior bonds) were the main contributor, whilst our real estate allocation also proved to be beneficial. Early repayment and calls continue to be supportive, with the redemption of 2024 bonds from Go-Ahead at a premium to market pricing.

Exposure to floating rate notes (FRNs), where interest payments are linked to cash rates, has increased in recent quarters. This helps dampen interest rate risk and has boosted income receipts. Our holding in student loan provider ICSL is an example of this, where income payments are linked to Sterling Overnight Interbank Average (SONIA) rate; income on these securities has risen significantly over the time, reflecting higher SONIA rates.

Primary activity was relatively low over the quarter. As well as the seasonal lull usually seen over the summer, rising overall yields means it is less attractive to raise debt capital. With a rising yield environment, many companies had brought capital raising forward to take advantage of low yields, and we would therefore expect issuance to remain somewhat lower in the next few quarters.

Financials remain the largest part of the market and dominated market issuance and our new issue activity. We had a bias towards senior new issues over the period, reflecting the fact that credit spreads in these areas were very attractive. Early in the period we added a new issue five-year bond from Principality Building Society at a yield in excess of 8%, also adding further to this bond later in the quarter in the secondary market as the spread remained very attractive. We also added a new senior issue from One Savings Bank, which priced with an attractive yield of 9.5%. Furthermore, we increased exposure to Nationwide Building Society, BNP, Santander UK, HSBC and Virgin Money through the purchase of new bonds.

In the secured sector, we participated in a new issue from Last Mile Logistics – a commercial mortgage-backed security FRN, backed by a portfolio of logistics assets across the UK with an attractive loan to value ratio and AAA rating. In the consumer area, we bought a new issue from German car manufacturer Volkswagen – these euro denominated bonds coming with an attractive yield – and a long-dated issue from disability vehicle provider Motability, with these holdings adding to overall portfolio diversification.

Market dynamics continue to provide opportunities to make switches where we can improve credit quality, yield or spread, with several examples during the quarter. Switches included the sale of Anglian Water into Western Power, shifting from water into electricity distribution and picking up additional yield and within the capital structure of Rothesay Life.

In the secondary market we added selectively to subordinated bank and insurance debt – where yields still remain elevated following the rescue of Credit Suisse. However, underlying credit fundamentals mean that some of these bonds offer excellent value in our view, with legacy bonds from Assicurazioni Generali and Legal & General the most recent examples.

In the structured area, whilst primary issuance has been limited, we have continued to see secondary market availability. During the quarter we added PFI bonds from Derby Health and Progress Health, and bonds from Meadowhall Finance, secured on the Sheffield shopping centre with good loan-to-value paying a very attractive credit spread, and Southern Water, the latter at very attractive levels for a regulated utility with an improving EPA score.

Overview

Outlook

We expect the downward trend in inflation to continue through the rest of 2023, as energy and food price increases moderate and sluggish GDP weakens the labour market. Nonetheless, UK interest rates are likely to rise further as the BoE continues to focus on bringing inflation under control.

Although the economic data remain very mixed, we still believe that higher rates will lead to a slowdown in the UK, impacting company earnings and leading to some increase in credit rating downgrades and default rates. We still favour sterling credit bonds over government debt as credit spreads remain at reasonably attractive levels. However, recent outperformance means that their relative attractiveness has reduced. We remain focused on identifying companies with strong balance sheets, favouring issues with security and downside protection, and ensuring that portfolios are diversified across issuers and sectors.

Our credit strategies generally have a material yield premium to the market, which we feel will support performance both in absolute terms and relative to the market. We retain a significant targeted exposure to BBB rated bonds and believe that compensation for default risk remains most attractive in this rating band.
